How to access real estate opportunities in life sciences?

14 April London 2:00 pm | New York 9:00 am | Hong Kong 9:00 pm

Real estate investors are looking to find new permanent destinations for their capital.

This means stepping out of the comfort zone of traditional core investments and accessing sectors that have historically been thought of as alternative or niche.

In this Deep Dive, we will help you digest one of the most sought-after alternative sectors: life sciences.

Join our expert panel to learn what a good opportunity in the life sciences sector looks like and what you need understand to effectively access this specialist market, with discussion on questions such as:

- » What types of buildings are classified as life sciences?
- » Is there a typical tenant profile and what are their needs?
- » What are the fundamentals that make an asset viable?
- » How do you find skilled operators in the market?
- » Is too much capital chasing too few opportunities?
- » What is the landscape of opportunities across regions?
- » How can you access the market at scale?
