Asia REITs: Prepare for the listed real estate revolution

17 March New York 9:00pm (16 March) | London 2:00am | Hong Kong 10:00am | Sydney 1:00pm

When private market activity was forced to pause at the start of the pandemic, investors found they could make quick, opportunistic trades and take advantage of pricing dislocation, especially in more covid-resilient property sectors.

Compared with the GFC, listed real estate - once viewed for its volatility and risk-reward dynamics - has subsequently found itself being re-evaluated, particularly when compared with private core vehicles.

Join our experts in a lively, interactive roundtable format to discover opportunities across Asian listed real estate. Key discussions include:

- » How long will the influx of institutional capital last? How will this change the composition of institutional real estate portfolios?
- » Investing in REIT equities or partnership with public REITs - which strategy best fits the Asian investor?
- » Outside of the mainstream property sectors - commercial, residential, industrial and retail - what other non-traditional sectors should listed real estate investors look at for long-term strategy growth trends?
