Measuring the 'S' in ESG

Three takeaways from the Women in Private Markets Summit

500+ participants gathered together to the Women in Private Markets Summit over two days for networking and connecting with attendees from over 20 countries.

Expect a tougher fundraising environment next year

The existing surfeit of capital in the asset class could make the fundraising process harder for big and small funds alike.

Investors want a clear rationale for continuation funds

Continuation funds are increasingly popular. Of the billions of Fund manager-led transactions completed in the first half of this year alone, 85% were continuation vehicles.

Democratisation of private equity must be handled carefully

The rising use of technology to bring private equity downmarket could prove a double-edged sword as increased access to private markets creates a need for greater investor protections.

TESTIMONIALS

from the 2021 summit

"The topics moved away from 'issues'...and focused on our businesses and advancing them as a unified collaborative body united to advance our work...the summit focused on our work and current business issues and opportunities."

Mary Sweere
Director
Fluidice

"Really enjoyed the conference - great organisation, excellent speakers and insightful content!"

Tzvete Doncheva
Senior Associate
Proptech1

"This was a well organised event, balancing between sessions hearing from industry leaders on topics that are currently top priority, as well as allowing time for networking and engaging with other participants. Highly recommended."

Marilena Ioannidou
Senior Investment Manager
British Business Bank

"As an associate, still at the early stage of my career and eager to learn and grow in the industry, I found it really inspiring to meet other successful women with similar background and working experiences"

Miryam Colombo
Client Advisor
Aquila Capital

"Inspiring speakers and can do attitudes made for a postive buzz and great atmosphere."
