

The background of the entire slide is a photograph of several wind turbines silhouetted against a bright, hazy sunset sky. The sun is low on the horizon, creating a warm orange and yellow glow that transitions into a darker blue at the top. The turbines are of varying heights and are positioned across the frame, with some in the foreground and others further back.

Keynote panel: impact investing in a time of uncertainty and urgency

- » Impact investing has arisen in a time of low opportunity cost, how will the market unfold in the coming years with rising interest rates and potential recessions?
- » The UN has reported we are on course for a 2.9 degrees world, nearly double the 1.5 target, what fundamentally needs to change to create urgency in meeting net zero goals?
- » How are investors addressing other pressing challenges such as the cost-of-living crisis and global food security?
- » Has income inclusion, arguably the original purpose of impact investing, fallen off the agenda?

Impact allocators panel: overview of investment priorities and strategies

- » Is impact as an investment lens, or should it be an investment bucket in LP portfolios?
- » What are the allocation priorities of institutional investors?
- » What is the opportunity universe and how are allocators filtering investment opportunities?
- » What issues are getting funding, and which aren't?

Keynote: fiduciary duty in the 21st Century - how can pension funds make more impact investments?

- » Does the principle of fiduciary duty for pension funds need be reformed to meet the climate emergency and global inequality?
- » How can pension funds better structure themselves for investing in transition solutions?
- » How is the ESG debate and legislative battle in the US states of Texas and Florida unfolding and what will be the legal implications for pensions looking to make climate-orientated investments?
- » Can climate investments always be focused on market-rate returns, and if not, will a concessionary approach be needed to foster capital flow to climate solutions?
