“ Vendor risk management is critical these days. ”

Bruce Karpati gave his thoughts on hot topics ahead of the Forum.

What is the biggest cybersecurity threat to private markets in 2023 and how are you overcoming it in your role?

“You can only control those vulnerabilities that you know about. Third parties and vendors can present unknown risks, so you need to do your due diligence and understand those factors before using them. Vendor risk management is critical these days; if you don’t pay attention, hackers and regulators certainly will.”

What are your top takeaways from the 2023 SEC exam priorities on technology and cybersecurity?

“The exam staff is clearly focused on firms’ policies and procedures and governance practices as it relates to cyber incidents. This should highlight for registrants that they must be prepared with a practical set of policies and procedures and a governance mechanism for dealing with incidents, in addition to the importance of testing your program with real-life tabletop exercises.”

David Stern gave his thoughts on hot topics ahead of the Forum

What is the biggest cybersecurity threat to private markets in 2023 and how are you overcoming it in your role?

“The speed at which new vulnerabilities are reported and then acted upon by adversaries has gone from months to weeks to days. Sometimes hours. It is vital that we focus on detection, incident preparedness and response. Significant improvements in these spaces can make a big difference to a Firm’s security.”

What’s the number one area where you think firms overlook their risks?

“The PE industry uses a lot of outsourced services. Important information is regularly interchanged, via email, between internal teams and external ones. These outsourced services have become so common the industry must ensure that these partners are capable and willing to do what is needed to protect their data.

This issue comes up in nearly every conversation that I’m having in 2023.”
